What are some of the offices that are up for election in 2010?

Representative in U.S. Congress - Representatives’ primary responsibility is to represent the citizens in their congressional districts. Congresspersons represent constituents by voting for or against Federal laws that are important to the citizens in their district.

State Senate and Assembly – They represent the citizens in their district in the State Legislature. State Senators and Assemblymen represent the constituents in their district by proposing State laws and voting on new legislation. Each district is represented by one State Senator and one State Assemblyman.

Other offices up for election that may affect children’s issues include District Court Judges, State Board of Education, State University Regent, and Clark County School Trustees.

Where can I get more information about my local elections?
